Nancy Wynne Hears That Mr. Flagg Is Home Again. She Talks About Various Debutante Affairs. A Case of Unselfishness

MR. STANLEY FLAGG, JR., is back from Europe; did you know it? He went over on business about two months ago and reached home this week. But he has to go back again in a couple of weeks. He is easier to get passports now, I understand.

Mrs. Flagg has been so deeply interested in the French relief work that I hope she will get to France and have an opportunity of seeing things that are being done in the best way. She is a member of the Navy League. The Flagg's daughter, Mrs. Anthony L. Geyelin, and her children, who have been spending the summer up in Englewood, came back to their Bryn Mawr home last week. She was Marie Flagg, you know.

THIS poetry concert which is to be held in the New Century Club on Wednesday, October 8, sounds interesting to me. Miss Louise Driscoll, who is well known in the poetical world and who lately received the prize offered by the National Poetry Society, is to give an address on modern poetry.

AS is often the case, first plans are likely to be changed. The Barclays have changed theirs and will have one tea instead of two to introduce Caroline. The date is October 21. Caroline is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Lytleton Barclay and a sister of Anne and Billie Barclay. Her mother was Miss Anne Wister, a daughter of the late Mr. Jones Wister by his first marriage.

ANOTHER Chestnut Hill debutante, Elizabeth Bartow, has changed her plans and she will come out and go about with her friends the early part of the season, will not entertain until later. Her grandmother, Mrs. Francis O. Allen, died the latter part of July, and Elizabeth does not want any parties for her grandmother's sake. She should not put off her debut, but should go out with the girls of her own age with whom she had grown up and with whom she would enjoy herself more than in another year.

Elizabeth is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph B. Bartow. When they finally decide to entertain, Elizabeth's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Heatley Dulles, will chaperone the party.

MARGARET GRAHAM, another Chestnut Hill debutante, has been having a gay summer in Newport. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Spencer Graham, you know, and a cousin of the Thayers, Molly and her younger. Mrs. Graham was Miss Rita Thayer, who married Mr. Tuttle and went out West to live, and sister also of Mr. William Thayer and half-sister of General Russell Thayer. Margaret's elder sister, Maria Graham, married Ricardo Zimmermann several years ago. They live in Spain.

Well, to return to Margaret. She was guest of honor Saturday at a luncheon given by her mother up in Newport. The Grahams are coming back to Philadelphia about the first of next month. Margaret will be presented at a tea on Saturday, October 25.

I FORGOT, there's another postponed tea. It is that which Mrs. Isaac Tattall Starr was to have given to introduce her niece, Mary Trotter Goodman, daughter of Mrs. Howard Seaver, on the 27th of this month. That will be given later in the season, too. Mrs. Starr is in mourning for her sister-in-law, Mrs. Rodman Griscom, who died last spring. Mary Griscom, who was to have come out, will not, of course, on account of her mother's death.

HE'S not very old and he was going to have a party for some of his little friends. And so one afternoon he and Mother went out for a shopping expedition and chose gifts for the coming week-end. Mother has been thinking perhaps your friends would enjoy those toys more than mine, so they can have them."

NANCY WYNNE. At the tea which Mr. and Mrs. Morris L. Clothier, of Clearmont, Villanova, will give on October 1, to introduce their daughter, Miss Emily E. Pike, Jr., and Mr. Clifford Hemphill, of New York, and Dr. Douglas MacFarlan, Mr. Clarence S. Woolman and Mrs. Craig Heberton, brother of the bride. Mr. Allen Lefort, of New York, will be best man.

Put Blame Where It Belongs

To the Editor of the Evening Public Ledger:—Sir:—In an editorial in the EVENING PUBLIC LEDGER of last Saturday, I am told, there appeared some statements that might be interpreted as casting the blame for the present law-breaking in the beer traffic upon the "zealots" who insisted on the passage of dry legislation contained in the war prohibition bill. I have been absent from my office and so did not see the editorial in question. However, it is not dangerous and an American ground for any molder of public thought to encourage to lawbreakers in their law-breaking by intimating that there is excuse for their law breaking in the fact that the law may have been unwise enacted? And is this not especially true, when it comes to dealing with a business if we may call it a business, that is the cause of much law-breaking and crime that all other causes combined? Congressional investigation brought out the fact that the brewers were hand in glove with the German-American Alliance, which was essentially German and anti-American. The place where criminals have always been sought for is the saloon. The liquor traffic has never been concerned about keeping or breaking the law, but only at being caught in its law-breaking. It actively sought the means by which to violate war prohibition. It gave a definition of its own to "intoxicating liquors" making 2.75 per cent beer non-intoxicating, as if that would release it from obeying war prohibition, a prohibition of beer which was enacted at a time when no stronger than 2.75 per cent beer could be legally made.

Congress has been to blame in not more speedily enacting legislation specifically dealing with the enforcement of war prohibition. It is true, but only a spirit of anarchistic tendencies would proceed to do that which the law specifically forbids. Only the anarchistic spirit will form an "association opposed to national prohibition" with the avowed purpose to "render inoperative" a part of the national constitution. An association whose purpose might be to bring about the repeal of that part of the constitution would be excusable, but loyal Americans will always obey the law of the land and not seek to "render it inoperative" so long as it is the law.

More to blame than Congress, perhaps, is the President, who gave encouragement to the repeal of that part of the liquor people by recommending the repeal of war-time prohibition so far as it relates to beer; and Root, who, for a price, was willing to sell him out to the trade by giving an opinion that if 2.75 per cent beer was non-intoxicating, then its sale might be safely legalized. Put the blame, Mr. Editor, where it belongs. If war prohibition is a good thing, then don't blame those who made it the law, but those who in any way would give comfort to the violators of the law. We are living in a day when it is more than dangerous to give any comfort to any law-breaker. B. E. P. PRUGH, Harrisburg, September 18.

CIVIC BODIES UNITE IN DRIVE FOR FUNDS

Four Organizations Seek to Raise $285,000 Between October 11 and 18

Four civic organizations will unite in a drive for funds to meet their expenses. It was announced today by J. Henry Scattergood, who will direct the drive. It will be called the United Civic Campaign.

The goal will be $285,000, and the time set for the collection of this amount is from October 11 to October 18.

No more than $285,000 will be collected, no matter how successful the drive may be. The money will be divided among the following organizations: The Philadelphia Housing Association; the Public Education and Child Labor Association; the Civil Service Reform Association and the Bureau of Municipal Research.

Mr. Scattergood, who is connected with the American Ice Works Company, successfully directed the campaign last winter for $140,000 for the Pennsylvania Working Home for Blind Men and has long been active on the boards of charitable institutions. He is treasurer of the Corporation of Haverford College.

He is widely known for his work in connection with the Friends' reconstruction unit in the war-devastated regions of Europe, and has spent two periods of six months each in France. He has delivered some fifty lectures to Quakers on the subject of the work done abroad.

He explained today that the united drive would save the expense of four separate drives.
